made one more try for a suit contract, but accepted his partner's decision to play three no trump. Sitting East-West were the two top-ranked American players in the world, Bob Wolff and Bob Hamman. Wolff led his fourth-best spade and Hamman could see that declarer had concealed his four- card spade holding. A lesser defender might have gone up with the king of spades and returned the jack. Declarer would cover and West would not know how to defend. Hamman could see that, if his partner held the ace of spades, he could not have an outside entry as well. So, to maintain communications, he played the jack of spades at trick one. Declarer won the queen, but he could not come to nine tricks without either trying the club finesse or tackling hearts. No matter which he tried, Hamman would win, cash the king of spades and continue with the suit to allow his partner to take three more spade tricks.

What if declarer held up the queen of spades on the first trick? As the cards lie. East would continue with the eight of spades at trick two. West should read that as a suit preference signal for clubs. since East is marked with a spade honor. So West can win the ace of spades and shift to a club, and the defenders must come to five tricks three spades, a club and the ace
