The bidding South West North East Pass 2 4 Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Three of 4

When the Royal Viking Sun docked in Bermuda near the end of her transAtlantic crossing last month, two teams of Bermudian bridge players came aboard for a social match with the ship's passengers. The cruisers won the encounter by three matches to one. This hand, however, was a triumph for the locals when a passenger slipped in defense.

South valued the hand as too strong for a 15-17 point one-no-trump opening bid. Once North could raise South brushed aside

North-South vulnerable. South West's interference and jumped to game.

West's opening spade lead was taken by East with the ace and the defender shifted to a diamond. Declarer won on the table in order to lead the ten of hearts. East covered with the queen, declarer's ace won and a spade was ruffed in dummy before a trump was conceded to West's king. Since East was now out of trumps, declarer's only other loser was the ace of clubs.

Suppose East had never heard of the adage about covering an honor with an honor and had chosen instead to follow different advice: "Second hand low" Rather than covering the ten of trumps with the queen, observe the difference had East followed with the six. If declarer runs the trump, West can win with the king, cash the ace of clubs and revert to diamonds for East to ruff-down one.

It's as futile for declarer to rise with the ace of trumps and continue the suit. Now the defenders will score two trump tricks and the two black aces to defeat the the enemy
