

REGION ORDERS LITTER REMOVED FROM PROPERTY

Junk would cost thousands to clean up

by BERNICE TRICK Citizen Staff

The owner of 2.5 acres of accumulated litter has been given 14 days to remove the debris or face the $70,000 cost of someone else cleaning it up.

Harold Jones said at a hearing Thursday he is moving the material and that it should be gone by the end of August from

Jones, who lives there but doesn't own the property, said he is waiting for a car crusher to come to deal with a number of the 75 automobiles on the property, he told his accusers — Fraser-Fort George Regional District directors.

Jones said he's doing what he can, but that it doesn't help matters when the regional district closes the landfill site gate at night, forcing him to wait until morning to unload the refuse.

Nevertheless, board members directed him to remove tons of "debris, waste, refuse, abandoned and damaged materials, car bodies and portions of bodies, auto parts and damaged trailers or house trailers" from the site.

Pictures displayed at the hearing also show lots of bicycles, rolls of copper wire, appliances, barrels, containers and a pigpen pointed out by Jones.

"The only thing you guys missed was the pigpen," said Jones, who accused bylaw enforcement officials of telling him to do one thing and, when he does it, telling him to do another.

"One time you say put things out back. Next time you say `Don't put it there.'

Just what the heck am I supposed to do?" said Jones, adding he intends to burn a lot of the materials with the co-operation of a volunteer fire department.

Directors were told area residents have complained about the property, owned by Lorne Sprecher and Hazel Mudryk of

The Ferndale Fire Department is reluctant to attend should a fire break out and because of activities taking place after dark, a department official wrote in a letter to the regional district.

If the site is not cleaned up by June 30, the regional district will contract R.F. Klein and Sons to do the job.

It will cost $48,000 for removal of debris, $7,000 for RCMP officers to stay on the site 10 hours a day while the contractor works, $3,000 for possible court injunction costs should Jones or property owners try and stop the contractor and $15,000 in tipping fees at Foothills Landfill site.

The hearing was also attended by lawyer Roy Stewart, acting on behalf of FFGRD and an RCMP officer.

Should the costs not be paid by Dec. 31, the bill will be added to the owner's property tax bill.

There have been two ordered cleanups of the property in 1992 and 1994, but complaints started again this year, said Don Clifford, bylaw enforcement officer.

CONVENTION IN PRINCE GEORGE

CUPE delegates cheer premier

by KEN BERNSOHN Citizen Staff

Premier Mike Harcourt accused Liberal leader Gordon Campbell of everything except failing to brush after meals, during a speech Thursday at the Canadian Union of Public Employees provincial convention in Prince George.

"One opposition party represents Howe Street and the other represents the 'Zalmites'" Harcourt said, referring to former Premier Bill Vander Zalm.

"We've made mistakes. God knows we're not perfect. But according to Harcourt. then again in the next election we won't be running against perfection. We'll be running against Jack Campbell and Gordon Weisgerber," he said, deliberately confusing the names of the two opposition

Harcourt said that Campbell felt, "We can't afford our labor laws that provide safety and security to working people."

Campbell also is against current environmental protection laws, protecting medicare, new schools and universities,

He also defended the NDP government, of course.

"B.C. has gone from a deficit of $2.4 billion in 1991 to a surplus of $100 million, a year ahead of schedule. And its been done without layoffs, wage rollbacks, and anti-union practices seen elsewhere in the

"I work hard to make sure the voice of labor is heard, and it is," he told labor union representatives.

The audience responded as programmed when Harcourt asked, "Getting rid of laws protecting workers. Is that a good plan for you and your families?

"Getting rid of Forest Renewal B.C. Is that a good plan for you and your family?

Special treatment of parolee denied

OTTAWA — An ex-convict who killed a man while on day parole in Prince George was not given special treatment because of possible links to the RCMP, the National Parole Board says.

Chairman Willie Gibbs wouldn't say if Paul Butler was an RCMP informant.

But he said that shouldn't have made a difference in his being granted parole.

"They made the decision based, I hope, on risk," Gibbs said Thursday.

The family of the victim says Butler bragged about working for the RCMP.

Butler, 28, described in official reports as a psychopath, was convicted in the September 1993 murder of Dennis Fichtenberg while on day parole after serving most of a 10-year sentence for armed robbery.

He had been released from Dorchester Penitentiary in New Brunswick in February 1993 and sent to a halfway house in Whitehorse.

After being convicted of break and enter, the parole board revoked his parole but gave him day parole.

chairman at the time, said that was an unusual decision.

"It's very seldom that on one hand you revoke a component of conditional release and on the other hand you grant the other component," he said.

Gov't action on blockade demanded

CHASE, B.C. (CP) -Residents whose homes are behind a native roadblock at Adams Lake rallied Thursday to demand government action to resolve the dispute. The natives have used a checkpoint to stop construction equipment for getting to a recreational vehicle development on the lake. But now they are threatening to charge a toll to local residents using the road.

Residents' spokeswoman Judy Kilgour said if the natives set up a toll booth, local residents will be hostages.

A native spokesman said he's pleased to see the rally because it might prompt some government action.

The Adams Lake, Little Shuswap and Neskonlith bands set up a blockade in March, saying the RV development would disturb an ancient native burial site at Adams Lake, a 45-minute drive northeast from Kamloops in the B.C. Interior.
