Library to hold events on food, gardens

Citizen staff

An expert on organic gardening will visit Prince George this week.

Ron Berezan will give a public presentation on growing food in urban areas on Friday evening, 7 p.m. start, and a workshop on creating a natural, sustainable and edible landscape on Saturday morning, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Both events will be held at the Prince George Public Library's main branch, in the Keith Gordon room.

Admission is by non-perishable food item for the Friday evening presentation and $35 for the Saturday morning workshop.

Tickets are available at the Recycling and Environmental Action Planning Society (REAPS) office at 1950 Gorse St.

Berezan's Friday presentation will explore a range of models for growing food in urban areas from private yards, to public spaces to community projects and more.

The workshop on Saturday will help gardeners develop a vision for transforming outdoor spaces and will offer many practical strategies for making it happen including an exploration of edible species suitable for the Prince George region.

Berezan has been gardening organically or more than 25 years and operates The Urban Farmer, an organic gardening, edible landscaping and "permaculture design" service based in Powell

Dandy Lines INC.
