First accused pimp unsuccessful at bail

The first of three city men accused of "pimping" young women has unsuccessfully tried for bail.

After three days of submissions by Crown and defence, Judge Bruce Macfarlane has denied Tran Ahn Vu, 25, bail.

Mr. Vu faces seven charges altogether: four of living off the avails of child prostitution and three of uttering threats of death or serious bodily harm.

He and two others, Ryan Arnold Schnepf, 20, and Robert Allan Dow, 20, were arrested on January 12, after police searched two area houses, one in the 1000 Block of Gillett Street and the other in the 2100 Block of Spruce Street.

While Mr. Dow faces only seven charges, Mr. Schnepf faces a total of 20 charges. Neither of those men has tried for bail.

All three will be back in Provincial Court on April 20.

Ask our expert

Why should I pre-pipe now for natural gas appliances that I'm not planning to buy or install right away?

Planning ahead can save time, money - and headaches down the road! Since gas piping runs inside your walls, out of sight, pre-piping at the building or renovation stages is inexpensive and simple - and it will save you the hassle and expense of opening up walls to install a new gas appliance down the road. With flexible piping, a gas contractor can easily bring natural gas to areas of your home that used to be hard to reach. Natural gas quick-connect outlet boxes can be installed so that new appliances can be easily connected - now or later!

Safety Tip: A built-in safety device automatically shuts off the gas when an appliance is unplugged.
