Council gives PG hotel patio green light

There'll be a party on the patio next summer at the PG Hotel.

City council agreed Monday night to a request from the hotel to allow it to operate a patio in its back parking lot during three downtown events.

The hotel will be granted a temporary liquor license for the 32-seat patio during the Father's Day Show 'N' Shine, the Go-Kart races in July and during Summerfest in August.

The application received opposition from two councillors. Murry

Krause and Sherry Sethen objected to the introduction of outdoor drinking into what they say are meant to be all-inclusive events.

"I think these events have been lauded as family events," said Krause. "I don't think this contributes to that goal."

Councillor Cliff Dezell, who has always been a staunch opponent to increasing the number of drinking seats in the city, supported this application.

"Since it doesn't increase the availability or the number of seats, I think it is a reasonable thing to do," he said.

The hotel currently has a 127 person capacity. It will reduce the number of seats available inside during the three special events by the 32 seats allocated to the patio, said hotel owner Ted Coole.

The hotel was granted the right to run the patio for the three events for the next two summers. After that they will have to come before a new city council elected in November 2005 to apply for an extension.

The owners must now get approval from the provincial liquor control and licensing branch.
