

THANKS GUYS

By Garrett Svensen,
Editor-in-Chief.

This marks the start of my third year working on the paper. I started in January 2012 with Andy Johnson as Editor in Chief. Since then, the Confluence has come out at least once a month with the support of students at CNC. The paper could not run without the contributions of students over the past two years.

And now it's time to pass the baton. I'm moving on to newer things after the end of this semester, and want to have the Confluence continue on as the best student paper in Prince George. Hence the posting for an editor. Contributions are still welcome, but the paper will not continue if we can't find anyone willing to do production. It's your chance to make a mark on the world, get some creative freedom over an established small-press publication and do a bunch of really cool things on the newspaper's budget.

It's been a great ride and although I know it's not quite over, I can see the terminal station coming up on the tracks. Now's the time to get someone else started.

EDITOR WANTED

The Confluence is seeking an editor for the student paper at CNC.

Editors aid in producing the paper by recruiting content, producing content, editing content and laying out the paper.

An ideal editor has a strong command of the English language, skills in editing and writing, and have a working knowledge of Adobe Creative Suite and Microsoft Office suite.

Detailed postings are posted around the school and also can be viewed in the SU office. Please refer to the full posting for specifics.

Currently the position is open to any current CNC students in good standing. To apply, send a brief resume and writing sample to news@cncsu.ca.

U-PASS REFERENDUM

By Garrett Svensen,
Editor-in-Chief.

The Students' Union has served notice that the U-Pass program will be going to referendum in the beginning of February.

The City has asked for a $.88 per month increase in the U-Pass fee. Students currently pay $13.50 a month, or $54 a semester for the service, which grants unlimited access to public transit in PG, as well as admission to the PG Aquatic Centre and the Four Seasons Pool. With the increase, the fee would come to $14.38 a month or $57.52 a semester.

Any fee increases for the U-Pass program must be approved by the student body at CNC, according to policy and the Students' Union's contract with the City.

The referendum will be held from the 4th to the 6th of February
