Hello readers, I hope the beginning of February treated you well, but I understand if you have a few qualms with this month. The snow came down in buckets for a few days, and I am sure this brought a lot of back-pain to some people, but it appears Kitimat and Terrace received the shit end of the stick, so let's all just be grateful that our homes did not disappear within a snowdrift.

Also, students of the College of New Caledonia Prince George Campus and the University of Northern British Columbia are fortunate enough to be enjoying two full weeks of spring-break this year thanks to the inclusion of the Canadian Winter Games. Be sure to take in the festivities that are the games, even if protesting them, and leave some time to relax. Also, I would suggest spending some time to study, but I would hate to ruin a good thing, so do whatever it is you feel like over these two weeks. Leave all the work until the last day, I am sure that will work out well.

If you have noticed stationary on your locker referring to an overdue locker rental, be sure to come by the student union office to have your locker extended for the current semester. Failure to do so will result in your locker being cleaned out and all useable goods will be donated to charity.

For anyone in possession of a smartphone, the CNCSU is happy to announce the launching of our College of New Caledonia Students Union App. It should appear as CNCSU in your app browser and will keep you up-to-date with all your CNCSU related functions, events, and activities.

As per usual, the Confluence is always looking for new material to publish. Send your submissions to the confluence.mag@gmail.com, and if your submission is selected for publishing, you will receive $20.00 and have your work semi-immortalized in both our print and online editions.

Best of luck!
