If print media is dead then why am I here?

Hey guys, it's me again. Welcome back to the College of New Caledonia for the 2019 Spring semester! It's nice to see you again you beautiful person. Anyways, there is a lot of cool stuff happening this semester, and I am very excited to see what you all think about it!

One of the things I'm excited to share is that one of the things planned for CNC is a brand new sports team. The students' union along with some passionate students have been advocating for a sports team for the past semester, and we are excited to say that we are moving to the next stage of forming a brand new, official CNC team. Make sure to keep your eyes peeled as there will be people who are looking for your voice and hear what you all have to say regarding the team.

Among other things, we are making a massive push for content this semester. We really want to showcase the talented students of CNC. If you have any work you are proud of, or if you want $20, send your stuff in. Who knows? It might just make it in the next issue.

Here's the News

Happy New Year! Here's to hoping 2019 doesn't suck as much.

They say that the year is what you make it. Frankly, those people are too optimistic and make me sick. Stupid positivity.

If you have a New Year's resolution, I encourage that you focus not only to better yourself, but to better yourself for others. Self-reflection is fantastic, but if the work you put in stops at you, it will stop short. Helping another person to have a better year results in that person returning the favour, and then this resolution reaches many others. And don't make your resolution to give up chocolate. We all know how that will end up.

In other news, I turn 20 in less than a week. No longer being a teenager is terrifying; the connotation of the "-teen" suffix is one with less responsibility, in a sense. Taxes! Tuition! Wanting to go to bed by 9PM! The horror! A part of me wants to go back to grade 4 when I was trading Pokémon cards and not doing three midterms a week.

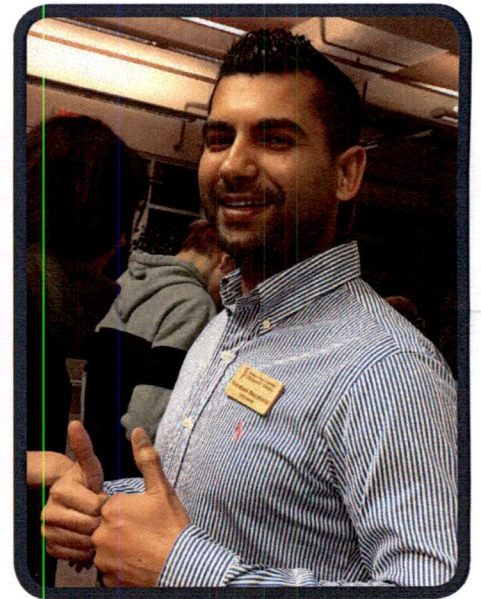

I look forward to beginning my final semester here. I hope your holidays were relaxing. May you all have a great semester, and an even better 2019!
