

A LIFE BY 'X'

BREAK BOUNDARIES

Anubhav Sharma, Student Contributor

Askew with the burden of excellence, people succumb to the unrelenting path, sometimes, way too early.

What they don't realize is the fact that they are not entitled to a certain level of achievement before attaining a certain age. Norms designed by the society are never meant to be fulfilled, at least by the time you don't want.

Why does the human mind think that one is supposed to have a job by 22?

Why does the human mind think that one is supposed to marry by 28?

Again, why does the human mind even gives birth to the fact that you are to have kids by 32?

The numbers may differ, but the facts don't. It's not ethically right to impose upon someone the pretentious need to get oneself to live his/her life, in an entirely different way than what is desired by the person in the first place. And yet, at the very moment when you think that your place in society is rectified, the accusation of not
